MEMORANDUM.

The figures in this Return have been prepared on a statistical basis, in completion of those contained in the Financial Relations (England, Scotland, and Ireland) Return of 1891 (Parliamentary Paper, No. 329), which included the Revenue paid to the Local Taxation Accounts and the Expenditure met thereout.

The memoranda in the Return of 1891 explain generally the principles adopted; and it is now only necessary to supplement these memoranda with a few remarks.

PART I.—REVENUE.

For the Customs figures the method of correction adopted has been that explained on page 31 of the Return of 1891, which being based on statistics furnished by Railway and Shipping Companies, is considered more exact than the one described on pages 6 and 7 of that Return. Moreover the actual figures of the consumption of Foreign Spirits in England, Scotland, and Ireland are now ascertained, like those of British Spirits, with precision, and have been used in the present Return.

In the case of the Income Tax and General Stamps, the method of correction explained on pages 12, 13, of the Return of 1891 has been slightly modified, after further inquiry and consideration, in two respects:—

(1.) The correction derived from the statistics of Probate Duty has been extended to Part I. of Schedule D, "Trades and Professions," so far as that part may be considered to include interest on capital. It is believed that one-fifth of the amount under that part of the Schedule may fairly be taken as such interest, and the figures have been adjusted on that basis.

(2.) On the other hand, it appears erroneous to apply to the whole field of "General Stamps" a correction arising solely upon realized personal property; and the correction has been revised so as to extend only to such portion of the General Stamp Revenue as the Board of Inland Revenue consider to arise from dealings in such property.

PART II.—EXPENDITURE.

The methods of analysis applied to the Expenditure may be stated in general terms, as follows:—

1. All items clearly arising from the service of the United Kingdom as such, or of the Empire at large, have been put under the head of "Imperial Services." Such items are mainly for the service of the Imperial Parliament, the National Debt, the Army and Navy, and for Foreign and Colonial Services, whether at home or abroad.

2. All items clearly referring only to services for the special use of England, Scotland, or Ireland have been charged against the kingdom to which they respectively appertain.

3. Doubtful or mixed items have been dealt with according to the special conditions of each case, with a view to distributing them, so far as possible, under the four heads of the tables. Such distribution has been made, wherever possible, on a basis approved, or on figures supplied, by the Department concerned.

4. Where analogous services occur in England, Scotland, and Ireland, the English item has generally been charged to England, although, as a matter of fact, it may include expenditure for Scotland or Ireland, for the United Kingdom or the Empire; but where the non-English portion of such an item can be clearly distinguished the separation has been made.

5. Where expenditure is chargeable to Great Britain only, an attempt has been made to divide it between England and Scotland.

6. Where it has been found impossible to distribute the expenditure on any reasonable assumption, with any approach to fairness, it has been classed as an Imperial service. The total amount, however, of such residuum is small.

7. The division has been carried out on corresponding lines, to a reasonable degree of approximation, into what may be called the ancillary expenses of Government, i.e., the cost of housing, stationery, and printing, and non-effective services. For this purpose the analysed figures supplied by Departments to the Comptroller and Auditor General, and appended by him to the Appropriation Accounts, have been employed so far as possible.
